

2WK PRE-SURGERY DIET

Why do I need to diet before surgery?

The purpose for the pre-surgery diet is to shrink the liver and reduce abdominal fat, which decreases the risk of complications during surgery.

How long do I need to follow this diet?

Two weeks (14 days) prior to your surgery

What do I do the day before surgery?

The day before surgery you will consume an all-liquid diet of protein drinks/shakes.

This is to ensure you have no solid food in the gastrointestinal tract prior to surgery. Do not consume ANYTHING after 10pm the night before your surgery.

What types of things may I experience during these 2 weeks?

It is not uncommon in the first few days to feel hunger, light-headedness, dizziness and fatigue. After the first few days (typically after the 4th day), you will start to feel much better as your body adjusts.

Be sure to drink plenty of fluids: water, low-calorie beverages (i.e. Crystal Light, diet decaffeinated ice tea, diet lemonade, Nuun, etc.) and decaffeinated coffee/tea are all acceptable. (No carbonated, caffeine or alcohol containing beverages).

Keep your “meals” spaced throughout the day; think “small frequent protein-dense meals.” (see sample menu)

If you currently exercise, you may want to cut back on the frequency or duration during these 2 weeks.

Stay busy & positive!

What does the diet look like?

You will have 3 Protein shakes/foods (see below) plus 1 Healthy Meal each day. The Healthy Meal can be eaten at any time during the day: breakfast, lunch, or dinner.

3 protein-rich products if using products that have 15 to 29gm of protein per serving

2 protein-rich products if using products that have 30+gm of protein per serving

140-220 calories

At least 15gm of protein per serving

Less than 5gm of sugar per serving
